Governor's Updates

Virginia is the first state in the country to design and launch a COVID-19 tracing application using Bluetooth Low Energy technology. It was developed by Apple and Google and does not rely on personal information or location data.

The innovative exposure notification app called COVIDWISE will alert users if they have been in close contact with an individual who has tested positive for COVID-19, Governor Ralph Northam said in a press

COVIDWISE was developed in partnership with the Virginia Department of Health (VDH) using funding from the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act.

The free app is available to download through the App Store and the Google Play Store. COVIDWISE is the only app in Virginia allowed to use the exposure notifications system (ENS) application programming interface (API) jointly created by Apple and Google. Other countries, including Ireland and Germany, have successfully used this technology in similar apps.

Governor Northam also announced this week a bipartisan, multi-state compact to expand the use of rapid, point-of-care antigen testing, which delivers results in 15 to 20 minutes. The states of Virginia, Maryland, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, and Ohio are entering formal discussions with Becton Dickinson and Quidel (FDA-approved manufacturers of antigen tests) to purchase 500,000 rapid antigen tests per state in an effort to have a more broad testing strategy.

North Carolina just entered the compact as the 7th state. Governor Northam provided the following new information during the question and answer portion of today's press release:

- When might Virginia receive these 500,000 antigen tests?
  - The team does not have a timeline set yet.
- Where will the tests be deployed?
  - Initially, they anticipate the tests could be used at long-term care facilities for testing staff and residents as well as at urgent care facilities, primary care doctors' offices, and emergency rooms. However, this is expected to change as they learn more and move forward.
- How much will the tests cost?
  - They do not know yet, but the intent of pooling the purchasing power of multiple states is to obtain the best price.

LOUDOUN ACCEPTS ADDITIONAL $36 MILLION IN CARES FUNDING

Loudoun County will receive another $36 million in federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act money to help mitigate the financial impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The county's first round of COVID funding was divided between towns and supporting Loudoun nonprofits, PPE acquisition, cleaning measures, and to provide telework resources for county employees.

The money will be spent on expenses incurred from the pandemic since March 1, must be spent by the end of the year, and does not represent any new funding that may become available as a result of current federal negotiations.
