

Apply for the correct work class!

What is a work class?

A work class is a specific application type.

In LandMARC, it appears in the name of the application.

The screenshot shows two application categories in LandMARC. The first category is 'Building Residential - Accessory Dwelling or Change of Use' under the 'Building Permits' category. The second category is 'Road Abandonment - With Street Acceptance' under the 'Land Engineering' category. Orange arrows point to the work class names in both categories.

Category Name	Description
Building Residential - Accessory Dwelling or Change of Use	Use when altering or changing the use of an existing structure to become an Accessory Dwelling Unit. (Must be on same lot as the Primary Dwelling unit and meet Zoning Ordinance requirements).
Road Abandonment - With Street Acceptance	This application is used to abandon dedicated and/or prescriptive right-of-way through the street acceptance process pursuant to Code of Virginia Section 33.2-912.

Review the description carefully to be sure it is right for your project!

Applications submitted in the wrong work class will be cancelled and will require reapplication.

If you're not sure, call before applying!
